Confederate Bill for $50. Frank Nappa, seventeen, of 41 Mulbeen engaged in swindling newly arrived

Policeman James P. Kelly saw two men acting suspiciously on Canal street, near Mercer, yesterday. One of these was Nappa. Finally the two started down the street ahead of a party of people, who had evidently been in this country only a short time.

The unknown man walked ahead and Nappo lingered a step or two in front of the victim. The unknown man drew a handkerchief from his pocket and, as II by accident, pulled out a pocket book, which fell to the ground.

Nappo picked this up amid great excitement and curiosity on the part of the crowd of emigrants. The pocket book contained several Confederate brownbacks, one being a $100 bill.

There were also several pieces of "stage money."

Kelly came up in time to hear Nappa

Relly came up in time to hear Nappa effer to sell the $100 to Adolph Lovindusky, of 150 Monticello avenue, Jersey City, for $50. When Nappa saw Kelly he dropped the bill and scraped snow over it, but Kelly found it and arrested Nappa.
